

The Institute of Geography, KlimaCampus and the Research Group Climate Change & Security (CLISEC) invite you to a lecture

by Mithika Mwenda, the coordinator of the Pan African Climate Justice Alliance (PACJA)

The Role of Africa in International Climate Negotiations:

The Experience of PACJA running up to COP 17

PACJA is a trans-African non-governmental organization which seeks to advocate, lobby and create awareness on the urgent need to integrate climate change into laws, policies and practices in broader sustainable development and poverty reduction strategies in African countries. During the COPs PACJA aims at speaking up for the African Civil Society in international negotiations as well as to support members to engage with key policy makers in their local governments. Based in Nairobi, Kenya PACJA represents groups from 43 African countries.

The lecture will

- discuss PACJA
- highlight the African position and
- give an outlook on the hopes and expectations for the upcoming COP

Lecture and discussion will be held in English.
